DOUBLE ELIMINATION

The tournament featured amazing action, once again, and an improbably double elimination win by the Medford team over Brendan Collier's Charlestown team. Collier's team had rolled through the tourney, but hit a wall on the experienced Russo Team from Medford – who beat Collier's team twice to win the Kup late on Sunday evening. Medford team storms back to beat Charlestown twice for the Kitchen Kup

By Seth Daniel

It seemed impossible, but as rare as it was, the experienced Team Russo from Medford stormed out of the Loser's Bracket and beat a hard-charging, impressive Charlestown team, fronted by Brendan Collier, two times to take the 2019 Kitchen Kup at Eden Street/McCarthy Playground (a/k/a/ The Kitchen).

The Russo team has been together for many years in the 16-year-old tournament, and while always being a tough out, had yet to win the crown. Adding a ringer from the University of Connecticut hockey team, Marc Gatcomb, and bringing in the steady goalie play of team founder Marc Russo – the team looked to be in contention.

However, early on Saturday, it was clear that Collier's Charlestown team – with Pat Fidler and Torrin Snyderman, among others – had come to play. The team set themselves apart from everyone throughout the tournament – and it was a very strong field of 20 teams this year. Collier's team highlighted the weekend with a Sunday win against Nolan Doherty's team – which included strong play from Charlestown's Sean Wrenn. That victory seemed to set Team Collier up for a roll to the winner's circle.

But Team Russo had experience and stamina. They had to win twice against Team Collier, coming out of the Loser's Bracket in the double elimination tournament,

(KITCHEN KUP Pg. 5)

The Kup was united with the Cup – the Stanley Cup. Members of the Kitchen Kup championship Russo Team traveled with Kup Founder Joe Brennan to New Hampshire to have the Kitchen Kup spend some quality time with the Stanley Cup. Former Kup player – and now St. Louis Blues world champion – Zach Sanford had the fella's up on his day with the Cup. Sanford had played several years in the Kup, and also played with the Russo Team.

Partnership

'Pigtails and Potter's Field' author, Urquhart, signs with W. Brand Publishing

Staff Report

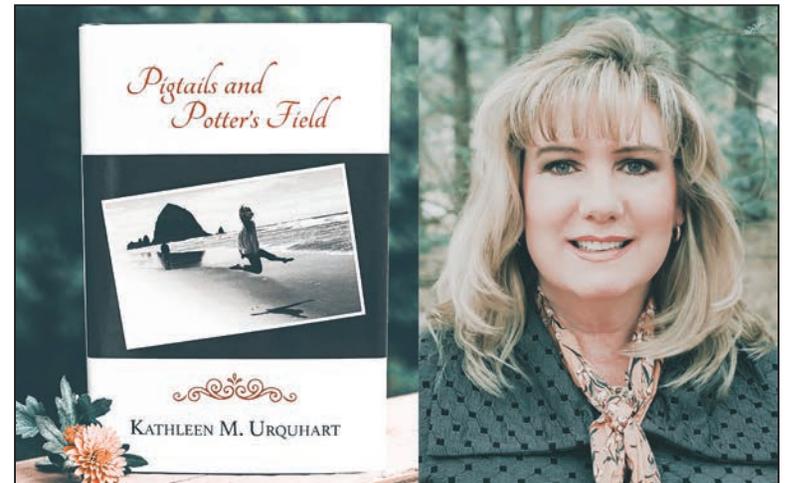

Kathleen M. Urquhart and W. Brand Publishing announced their partnership recently for advanced book promotion of Urquhart's 'Pigtails and Potter's Field' concentrating on television/film rights.

The book has excellent momentum and sales since its launch in September 2018, and now, W. Brand Publishing will seek new ventures between bookstores and various media outlets to take the book to the next level.

Urquhart explained her decision to sign with W. Brand Publishing, "I am thrilled to work with JuLee and W. Brand Publishing. I was fortunate in that I had a number of opportunities open to me, but I took to heart her self-professed passion: '...to empower writers to find a voice that breaks down the barriers in the hearts and minds of readers who need to hear the

EDITORIAL

WHAT IS HAPPENING TO OUR COUNTRY?

"I say violence is necessary. Violence is a part of America's culture. It is as American as cherry pie." -- Jamil Abdullah Al-Amin, also known as H. Rap Brown.

America has been rooted in violence since our founding. We broke free from England violently and used violent means to expand our nation both geographically (the Mexican War, the Indian Wars, and the Spanish-American War) and economically (slavery).

The Louisiana Purchase and the purchase of Alaska from Russia uniquely expanded our borders through peaceful means.

We also have engaged in countless, unprovoked uses of force, military and otherwise, to preserve our way of life from enemies both real and perceived, intervening in their internal affairs, both in this hemisphere and far away (Vietnam and Iraq).

It was violence that tore us apart and nearly destroyed our country in the 1860s, and it was through violent means -- lynchings and segregation -- that the South enforced Jim Crow laws after the Civil War.

For those of us who grew up in the 1960s and '70s, Martin Luther King and the Civil Rights movement stood out because they sought to achieve change through peaceful means at a time when self-described revolutionary groups brought domestic violence to our TV screens with bombings and other acts of violence.

But throughout our history and despite our legacy of violence, we had leaders who understood that violence -- military and otherwise -- could sow the seeds of our own destruction.

From George Washington, who in his farewell address stated, "Observe good faith and justice towards all nations; cultivate peace and harmony with all," to Abraham Lincoln, "We are not enemies, but friends. We must not be enemies. Though passion may have strained, it must not break our bonds of affection. The mystic chords of memory will swell when again touched, as surely they will be, by the better angels of our nature," to Dwight Eisenhower, "In the councils of government, we must guard against the acquisition of unwarranted influence, whether sought or unsought, by the military-industrial complex," our wisest and greatest leaders have warned us of the perils of disunity at home and military ventures abroad.

The White Nationalist movement plaguing our nation today actively preaches violence as a means of overthrowing our government and ending our way of life as we know it.

They are not Americans, for they do not accept Jefferson's ideal that, "All men are created equal."

The massacre in El Paso this weekend was the latest example of what happens when our leaders fail to stand up for our founding principles and fail to enact common-sense laws that would limit the damage they can inflict.

The America as we have known it for the past 231 years is falling apart, little by little. The only question now is whether we have reached the breaking point or whether we still have the time -- and the will -- to repair the damage and save us from ourselves.

GUEST OP-ED

It is necessary to stop these horrendous attacks

By Cardinal Seán P. O'Malley

The mass murder of 31 innocent people in a 24 hour period, fueled by hate and disregard for human life, is unacceptable in any society. We offer our prayers and support for the communities of El Paso and Dayton in the midst of this time of immense pain.

Our nation was founded on the principle that all people are entitled to "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness." We implore our elected leaders to rise above ideological differences and work together to address the serious issues facing our country by enacting meaningful and effective policies to end the violence. This includes keeping firearms, particularly assault weapons, out of the hands of those who would use them to inflict devastating harm on our communities. We must address inadequate mental health care in this country. Finally, we must work towards a more civil and just society that rejects all forms of violence and hatred in our country. The fabric of our national conscience is at risk.

Today we give thanks for the bravery of the first responders who selflessly rush to the aid of the victims and pray for the healing of those injured in the shootings. We call upon the intercession of Mary, the Mother of God, for the protection of our loved ones, friends and neighbors as we entrust to our Lord's mercy those lost to this violence. Together let us strengthen our commitment to do what is necessary to stop these horrendous attacks.

ication to creating high-quality educational content for diverse audiences and across platforms,” says WGBH president and CEO Jon Abbott. “These fellowships are a continuation of WGBH’s longstanding commitment to supporting our talented and creative producers.”

London (of Charlestown) and Porzucki were selected as 2020 Becton Fellows. This fellowship, supported by the Becton Fund and named in honor of WGBH’s former president and current vice chair, Henry Becton, Jr., recognizes promising WGBH producers and content creators whose work is emblematic of the organization’s public service message.

London is a digital editor at WGBH where she leads the development and creation of engaging digital and social media experiences across existing and emerging platforms. Previously, London worked in financial news as Editor-in-Chief at a start-up production company in New York City. London is a graduate of the Columbia University Graduate School of Journalism and Colby College.

Porzucki directs podcasting at WGBH. She previously worked as a producer for PRI’s ‘The World’ where she also co-hosted and produced ‘The World in Words’ podcast. Previously, she served in the Peace Corps in Romania and traveled around the U.S.

for StoryCorps. Porzucki holds an MFA in Creative Writing from The New School. Her work has aired on NPR, PRI, and the BBC.

Adams and Gillim were selected as the Margret and Hans Rey/Curious George Producers. Made possible through a bequest from author Margret Rey through the Curious George Foundation, this fellowship recognizes WGBH producers who work in areas reflecting Rey’s broad interests, including science, public affairs, arts, health and children’s programming.

Gillim oversees WGBH’s children’s series Molly of Denali and Pinkalicious & Peterrific. Previously, she served as Executive Producer for the PBS series ‘Curious George.’ She began her television career as a writer and audio editor on ‘Dr. Katz’ for Comedy Central. In 2006 she created WordGirl for PBS KIDS. Gillim has won Emmy Awards, a Peabody Award and a Television Critics Association Award.

In special recognition of Adams’ significant contributions to WGBH productions across genres over the course of two decades, this Margret and Hans Rey/Curious George Producer Award is granted posthumously. During her time at WGBH, Adams led the daily public affairs program Greater Boston, local productions such as Eye on Education and High School

Quiz Show, Studio Six programs such as Simply Ming and Lidia Celebrates America and current events specials like Point Taken, America After Ferguson and Third Rail with Ozy. Her work earned Emmy awards, James Beard Awards and a George Foster Peabody Award. Prior to working at WGBH, Adams was an executive producer at CNN and a writer for the MacNeil/Lehrer Report. Adams passed away on April 9, 2019 at the age of 55.

Yost was selected as the Peter S. McGhee Fellow. Emmy-nominated documentary filmmaker Yost is the founder of the Brooklyn-based production company, Pangloss Films. Yost has produced, directed and written dozens of films for WGBH’s science documentary series ‘NOVA,’ National Geographic specials, The New York Times, CBS News and others. Yost is currently working with WGBH’s Studio 6 to produce a four-part series about the history of psychiatry and mental health. Named for WGBH’s former head of national programming, the McGhee Fellowship is awarded each year to a mid-career filmmaker who has shown exceptional promise in non-fiction television production and who adheres to the standards set by McGhee, including excellence, intelligence, fairness, passion and scholarship.

message—to heal, to connect, to remind, to survive.’ ‘Pigtails and Potter’s Field’ needs this type of voice and heart. I am confident in the team’s ability to take this very timely and relevant project to new and greater heights.

“I was intrigued from the very first chapter,” said JuLee Brand-Publisher/W. Brand Publishing, “Not only that but I was completely surprised by the plot twists Kathleen uses throughout the book. It takes a well-written book to fool me and ‘Pigtails and Potter’s Field’ did just that. We have very big aspirations for this book.”

Urquhart was raised in historic Charlestown. Educated at a private, female Catholic high school, she graduated from Burdett College in Boston. A true lover of all things New England, she divides her time between Massachusetts and New Hampshire. Having traveled to Ireland, Kathleen represented the United States at the International Western Rose Festival held in County Mayo, Ireland.

She was actually, also, the first Charlestown Rose to participate – winning the contest in the Town and heading to Ireland. There, she said, she got most of the inspiration for her book, ‘Pigtails and Potter’s Field.’

She works as an Executive Assistant to the President of a private college in Boston.

'PATH OF THE DAFF'

Charlestown's Diane Valle was welcomed to a showing on Woods Hole of the documentary 'Path of the Daff' regarding Marathon Daffodils, which she founded after the Marathon Bombing in 2014. The documentary has gotten great play over the last year highlighting Valle and all of the other partners that stepped up to plant Daffodils along the entire Marathon route. The effort continues to this day each year. A report from the Wellesley press read, "After tragedy, there are always certain people who look around and figure out how to bring positivity. Charlestown resident and urban horticulturalist Diane Valle is one of those people. She had a vision of hope and rebirth for the Boston, and that vision included daffodils. Her goal: to line the Boston Marathon route with a sea of daffodils that would bloom for Marathon Day and symbolize that idea of hope. I spoke to her at the festival and Valle said, 'This movie and the daffodils are all about hope and looking forward. I think the world is a better place with flowers in it.'" Pictured here are Marathon Daffodils Grower, Clive Olson, co-owner of Olson Greenhouse and producer of 'Path of the Daff'; Marathon Daffodils Founder Diane Valle; Marathon Daffodils Grower Matthew Piscitelli, co-owner of Olson Greenhouse and producer of 'Path of the Daff'; and Noelle Kaelblein, first time and now accomplished global Marathon runner, featured in 'Path of the Daff.'

LOVE FATHER
RONAN'S COLUMN

I love reading Father Jim Ronan's reflections in the Clergy Viewpoint column. His latest installment, "Lost And Found," was enlightening as usual.

One quote from his piece said it all to me: "As we go forward with the losses and fines of our life, look around. There is some new insight and experience awaiting us and God is behind us all the way."

The other evening, I was on a harbor cruise. First, I traveled outward and saw the city skyline fading in the distance. Then, on the return trip back to the wharf, I could see the city looming larger and larger in view.

Many of us grow up in one place and then later in life can be found in another place. I started off in the South End and Lower Roxbury because my dad's job was at Boston City Hospital. I travel back to my old stomping ground today, and I feel like an alien in my own land. A part of me wishes to be back there, and another part is glad I left.

Our lives don't follow a straight line; that would be too easy.

We live with twists and turns. We find our way. We lose our way. We seem lost, then we seem found. We are confused, and we are clearheaded.

Charlestown was a big part of my life, both yesterday and today. I have seen it go from $150 rents with utilities. I have seen the so-called invasion of the yuppies some 40 years ago. I have seen housing costs soar to the skies. Things constantly change because to change is to grow.

Father Ronan talked about our lost-and-found mindset. We hate losing anything. However, sometimes it's okay and preferable to lose old habits, old angers and old thinking.

Like Father Ronan basically said, it may seem God is giving us too tough of a struggle in life, but God never gives us more than we can take on, and I truly believe this.

Over in France, there was

and they did just that.

"I think that's only happened three times," said Kup founder Joe Brennan. "You can probably count on one hand the number of times that someone has come out of the Loser's Bracket and has won two times to get the Kup. That's how hard it is...It was a very memorable Kup right down to the end. I think everyone anticipated and was excited to see if Collier's team, with Hurley, Fidler and Brendan, was going to win it. But they lost two straight games in the finals. It's very hard to keep the energy up – it's two very long days and even when you're not playing, you're walking around or waiting to play. Russo has been playing here forever and he's always solid in goal. Alex Vinneau and Tony Resendes have been good in this tournament for years. Then they went out and got a young gun in Marc Gatcomb. Everyone was focused so much on that Charlestown team and Russo came in and took it away."

It was, however, the first time in a long while that the South Boston 'Mooks' team did not win – as they had won twice in a row. However, that team was different this year, and was led by Scottie Simpson and a band of the McDonough brothers from Dorchester. They seemed like they were poised to contend again even with the new crew, but ran into a buzz saw in the East Boston Lockhead team – which was one of several younger teams that surprised many.

"Scottie's team is very good team," said Brennan. "They won the South Boston tournament and the Dot Pot too. For whatever reason, they lost at the Kup. To be honest, the team they lost to – the East Boston kids – they brought it to them. They played hard and tough and were in the corners battling."

Another surprising team that came to play was Nolan Doherty's team, which also featured Kup Organizer Cam DelValle. That team fought through the Winner's Bracket all weekend, but lost a monumental game on Sunday against Collier's Charlestown team.

"Their team and Sean Wrenn and Cam DelValle and the Lockheads, they had the biggest impact aside from Russo coming back and winning it," Brennan said.

Of course, no Kup would be the same without The People's Team – a crowd favorite from Charlestown that has played together for years and is fronted by Nolan Carrier and John Humphreys.

A key storyline in the Kup was behind the scenes this year, and that story was of Brennan handing the organizing reins over to Hughie O'Donnell and DelValle. Both had helped Brennan out for several years, and this year stepped up and did a great job coordinating the Kup with support from their family and friends.

"Hughie and Cam did a great job," said Brennan. "It's their first time, but they did it. Cam's family was down there helping, and Hughie's family was there on Saturday. They picked up all the slack like my family did for so long...That was really what I wanted – the help from the families and kids in the community. That's where the respect factor comes in and they get community support."

Saturday afternoon was highlighted by a visit from Charlestown resident and Boston Bruin Matt Grzelcyk, who stopped by the Kitchen to check up on the tournament. Grzelcyk played for many years in the Kup, and he highlighted a team that helped to make the tournament a household name.

Grzelcyk visited with all his friends while there, including Collier and his team.

Grzelcyk brought an interesting storyline to this year's Kup that tagged on with St. Louis Blues star Zach Sanford – a native of New Hampshire and also a former Kitchen Kup player. Both Grzelcyk and Sanford scored goals in Game 7 of the Stanley Cup Finals, and both scored their fair share of goals over the years in the Kup as well.

Speaking of Sanford, Monday happened to be his day to party with the Stanley Cup, which he brought to New Hampshire for a private party. Sanford had played in the Kup with the Russo Team, and when he heard they had won, he invited Brennan and Team Russo up to unite Kup with Cup.

Brennan said he had hoped something like that might happen, but he had figured it would come from Grzelcyk. However, it didn't turn out that way, but still, the Cups were united anyhow.

"It didn't work out how we would all want it with the Bruins winning it all, but the fix was in because Kitchen Kup players were playing on both sides, and Zach was able to unite the cups," said Brennan.

Team Russo had recruited Sanford years ago when one of their players – originally from Medford – moved to New Hampshire. Up there, he met Sanford playing hockey and convinced him to come to Charlestown for the Kup.

The rest is history, and the legend and lore continues.

"Really, it's just the way of the hockey community," said Brennan. "It's so tight knit and close. Everyone knows everyone and that's how this transpired."

The Kitchen Kup will be played in 2020 during the first weekend in August.

KITCHEN KUP ROLLER HOCKEY TOURNAMENT

The Kitchen Kup Tournament featured amazing action, once again, and an improbably double elimination win by the Medford team over Brendan Collier's Charlestown team. Collier's team had rolled through the tourney, but hit a wall on the experienced Russo Team from Medford – who beat Collier's team twice to win the Kup late on Sunday evening.

Ryan Moran of Team Lockhead sneaks one under the glove of the goalie on Team Kelley. Team Lockhead, of East Boston, made a nice run in the Winner's Bracket.

Chris Brennan, Cal Brennan and Kup Founder Joe Brennan. Chris represents the DC 35 Painters Union, a sponsor of the Kup every year.

Organizer Cam DelValle and Founder Joe Brennan take timeout for a photo in front of the brackets on Saturday.

Gabriela Belen helped to staff the concessions all weekend.

Founder Joe Brennan holds on to the fence to get out of the way of the action.

Tony Resendes of Team Russo sets up behind goal for an assist.

Scottie Simpson passes the ball up court to a teammate. The Simpson South Boston team had won the Kup two times in a row, but suffered an early setback to East Boston's Lockhead team and didn't get out of the Loser's Bracket – though they did post some pretty impressive wins through the journey.

Tyler Moran of the tough Team Lockhead knocks away the ball in defending the goal.

Alec Vinneau – the "Playground Legend" – looks up court for a teammate.

Marc Gatcomb pushes the ball up court on a break-away for Team Russo.

Sean Wrenn (L) and Torrin Snyderman (R).

Will Ahearn (L) and Nolan Carrier (R).

Bobby Huu, Caitrin Houlihan, and Mike Doe.

After a long 48-hour marathon of roller hockey, Team Russo emerged from the Loser's Bracket to beat Brendan Collier's strong Charlestown team two times.

CPA Ryan LaRue selected for prestigious national leadership academy

Ryan LaRue, CPA, CFE, an active member of the AICPA and the Massachusetts Society of Certified Public Accountants (MSCPA), was one of 38 CPAs honored by the American Institute of CPAs (AICPA) as a member of the Leadership Academy's 11th graduating class. LaRue, a manager at global advisory firm StoneTurn, was selected based on his exceptional leadership skills and professional experience for the four-day Leadership Academy program, which will be held from Oct. 6-10 in Durham, N.C.

Ryan LaRue.

LaRue, a Charlestown resident, is a CPA and certified fraud examiner at StoneTurn in Boston, where he assists and advises clients and counsel with forensic accounting, complex litigation and compliance and monitoring matters. He has experience leading and performing forensic accounting investigations, assisting counsel and organizations with accounting and auditing matters and performing assessments of internal controls and remediation initiatives. He also has experience assisting clients with matters involving SEC enforcement inquiries and internal investigations. As StoneTurn continues to expand across the globe, LaRue takes an active role in mentoring up and coming professionals.

The AICPA Leadership Academy was designed to strengthen and expand the leadership skills of promising young professionals while they network with a peer group of talented and motivated CPAs.

The Leadership Academy features career-development workshops and sessions with some of the accounting profession's most prominent influencers, including William (Bill) Reeb CPA, CITP, CGMA, chair of the American Institute of CPAs, Barry Melancon, CPA, CGMA, American Institute of CPAs president and CEO, Association of Certified Professional Accountants CEO and Mark Koziel, CPA, CGMA, executive vice president – firm services, Association of Certified Professional Accountants.

Participants were selected from public accounting firms of all sizes, business and industry, academia and consulting firms.

The 2019 Leadership Academy attendees were recommended by their employers, state CPA societies or both. Candidates submitted resumes and a statement explaining how participating in the Leadership Academy would impact them personally and professionally. They also wrote an essay on the topic "The future will bring significant changes to the accounting profession. What do leaders have to get right in order to successfully lead?"

To date, 351 CPAs have participated in the AICPA Leadership Academy, many of whom have gone on to take on leadership positions in their firms, businesses and volunteer organizations.

The Massachusetts Society of Certified Public Accountants, Inc. is the state professional association of certified public accountants, representing over 11,000 members in public accounting practice, industry and business, government and education. The Society works to develop and maintain high professional standards and offers a wide array of legislative, technical and referral services to its members.

Beach safety tips for children listed

Follow these beach safety tips for kids so you and your family have a great day at the water!

1. Always obey the beach safety flags. Beaches use flags to warn visitors of dangerous conditions. A green flag means the conditions are calm and it's okay to swim. Yellow means there is some light surf or currents and caution is advised. Red means there is very strong surf or currents so it's not recommended that children get in the water. Double red means the beach is closed to the public. There is also a purple flag when jellyfish and other dangerous marine animals could be present.

2. Wear life jackets. Young children should wear an approved life vest when in the water. Even if they are only walking in water up to their knees or waist, the waves could cause them to lose their footing. It's important they wear a flotation device so they can stay above water until an adult can help.

3. Only swim in safe areas. Not all areas of the beach are safe for kids to splash or swim in. Studies have found that beaches with no lifeguard around create a much greater risk for drowning. Find a public location with a lifeguard present. That way, there is help available if something should go wrong.

4. Protect everyone from the sun. Most beaches don't have many shady spots so carry a beach umbrella for the family to sit under during a break from the water. Apply sunscreen on the children and reapply as needed to ensure they do not get burned. Take a cooler of cold water to keep children hydrated as well.

5. Wear shoes on the sand. Many kids will want to feel the sand beneath their toes as they run to and from the water. However, in the hottest part of the day, the sand can get very hot. It can be too hot to walk on it with bare feet. Bring beach shoes or flip flops to keep everyone's feet comfortable and protected.

6. Never dive into the ocean. Most places you will swim at the beach is not deep enough for diving. Avoid head or neck injury and splash into the water feet first.

Obituaries

Brian Robertson

Owner of B R Mechanical in Woburn

Brian K. Roberts of Woburn, formerly of Charlestown, passed away unexpectedly on Friday morning, Aug. 2. He was 53 years old.

Born in Norfolk, Virginia and raised in Charlestown, he was the son of Patricia A. (Leason) Robertson of Clinton and the late James Robertson.

Brian was an HVAC technician who owned and operated B R Mechanical in Woburn.

He was an avid sports fan, loved the Patriots and, in his free time, Brian enjoyed golfing and looked forward to his Tuesday night golf league.

In addition to his father, Brian was preceded in death by his son, the late Brian A. Robertson and his son's mother, the late Allison J. Ek.

Brian is survived by his mother, Patricia A. Robertson of Clinton and his siblings Raymond Robertson of Clinton and Linda McGee and her husband, Joseph McGee, Jr. of Quincy. Brian is also survived by four nephews: Joseph McGee, III, Brendan McGee, Patrick McGee and Aiden McGee and by his lifelong best friend, Mike Santangelo of Wilmington.

Visiting hours will be held at the Graham Funeral Home, 3 Arlington Rd., Woburn on Thursday, Aug. 8 from 3 to 7 p.m. Burial will be private. In lieu of flowers, contributions in Brian's memory may be made to the Canavan Foundation, 600 West 111th St., Ste. 8-A, New York, NY 10024.
