AG Healey focuses on opiate epidemic, climate change in her inaugural address

Staff Report

Attorney General Maura Healey was sworn in for her second term on Jan. 16 and also administered the oath of office to hundreds of Assistant Attorneys General.

In her inaugural address, AG Healey, a Charlestown resident, focused on a few specific priorities for the years ahead, including a continued focus on the opioid epidemic, leadership on clean energy and addressing climate change, gun violence prevention efforts, and support for new funding for education to help all students in Massachusetts succeed.

At the Emerson Colonial Theatre – after being sworn in by Judge Rya W. Zobel – AG Healey also highlighted some of the office's accomplishments over the past four years, including work to combat the opioid crisis, defend gun laws, recover millions of dollars for taxpayers, successfully defend state interests in court, and take action on behalf of residents on issues of wage theft, consumer protection, and civil rights.

"Four years ago, I said that the Attorney General's job is to be the People's Lawyer. And that's what I, that's what we, have tried to be," AG Healey said. "We were tested by new challenges and confronted some old divisions. Change doesn't come easily, and sometimes progress is slow. But we know that when we work as one, when we harness our drive and determination, there's nothing we can't do."

AG Healey said confronting the opioid crisis will continue to be her office's top priority in the new term. She vowed to expand prevention education in schools, use her Fentanyl Strike Force to take lethal drugs out of communities, break down barriers that stop families from accessing the mental

State moving towards approval of Pier 6 marina project four years later

By Seth Daniel

Owners of the Charlestown Marina and officials at the state Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) showed confidence this week that the newest plan to rehabilitate the Pier 6 marina will soon get through state approval hurdles – that coming nearly four years after the plan was filed with the DEP and the Attorney General's Office, which oversees the former marina's rehab.

This week, DEP said they have a revised plan in hand, which was filed in November, and are working to finalize the details of the license – a license that will open the gate to develop the marina in the same fashion that Ann and Chuck LaGasse redeveloped Pier 8 several years ago.

"After reviewing the initial license application after the public comment period, MassDEP required changes to the plan to comply with the consent judgment," said Ed Coletta, spokesman for DEP. "An amended plan was submitted to MassDEP in November. The agency is still reviewing that redesign and working with the applicant to finalize the last details of the license before issuing it. A final decision is expected soon."

That is good news to Ann and Chuck LaGasse – who took over the blighted and decrepit pier in 2014 after the Attorney General's

EDITORIAL

THANK YOU, JAY ASH

When Gov. Charlie Baker was elected to his first term of office four years ago, his first major announcement was the appointment of Jay Ash to the post of Secretary of Housing and Economic Development.

The announcement by Gov. Baker, a Republican, came as a surprise to many political insiders because Ash was a lifelong Democrat and at the time was serving as the City Manager for the City of Chelsea, a post he had held for almost 15 years. Moreover, the Secretary of Housing and Economic Development is among the most important members of a governor's cabinet, and typically goes to a person who is among those most trusted by the governor to implement his broad policy objectives.

However, Ash's appointment by Gov.-elect Baker signaled two things about the incoming administration: First, that Baker was going to "reach across the aisle" to Democrats and second, that he was seeking the most-qualified persons he could find to serve in his administration.

During the past four years, Charlie Baker's appointment of Jay Ash, who officially stepped down from his cabinet post in December to become the new president of a nonprofit business group known as the Massachusetts Competitive Partnership, has proven to be a win-win for Gov. Baker -- and the people of Massachusetts -- on both scores.

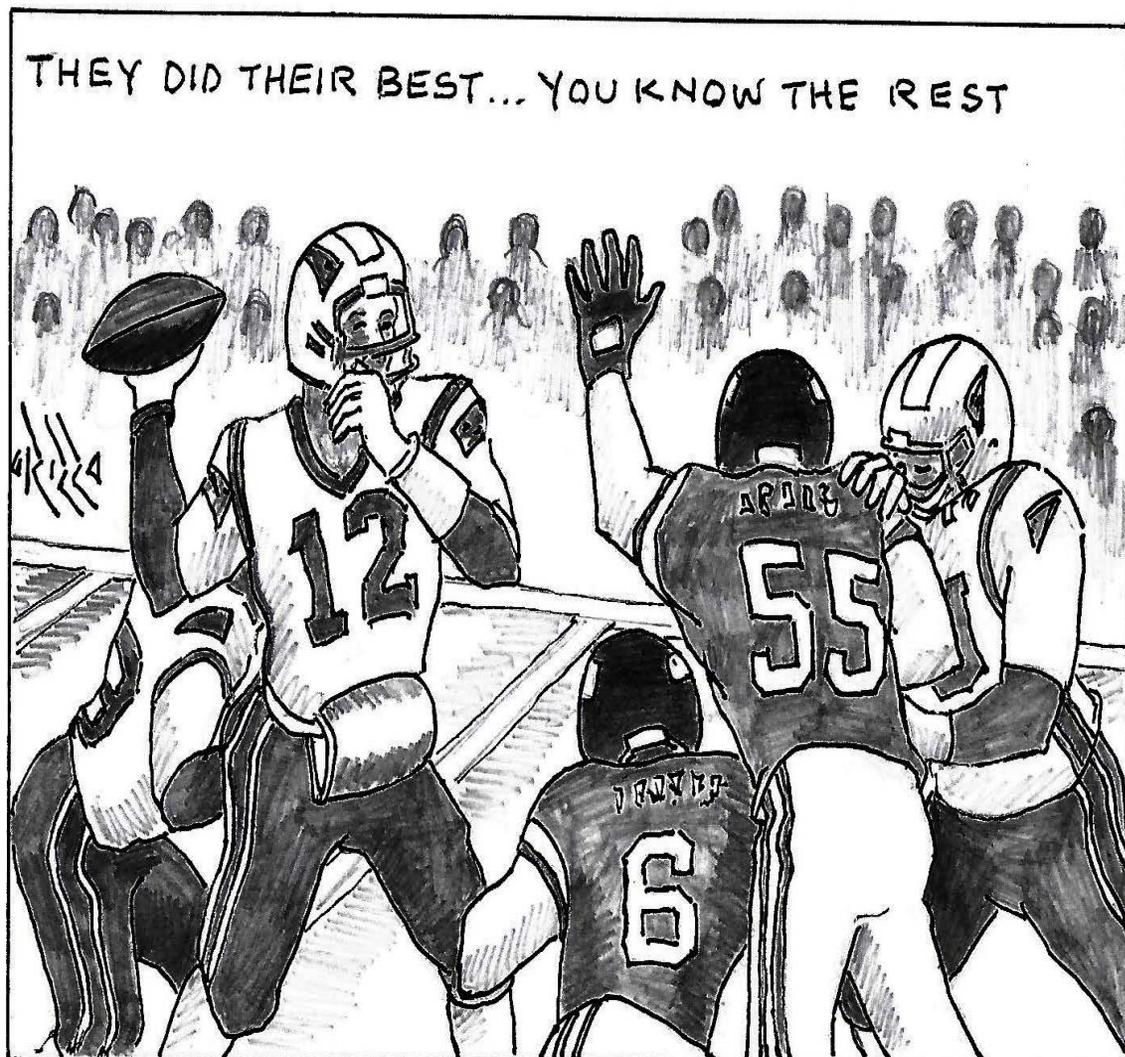

Ash, who had served for many years as the chief of staff to former House Ways and Means Committee Chairman Richard Voke, not only knew the ins-and-outs of the legislative process, but also was on a first-name basis with many legislators, most notably House Speaker Bob DeLeo, who played a key role in working with Jay in implementing the many initiatives put forth by the Baker administration.

In addition, Jay Ash brought to the table his experience as the City Manager of Chelsea, a small city that is the prototype for both the potential and pitfalls of economic development of urban areas throughout the state.

During his tenure, Jay Ash brought to fruition many projects that will bring economic benefits for future generations of our state's residents. Among Ash's signature accomplishments, he played a key role in bringing the Pawtucket Red Sox to Worcester, which included the redevelopment of the city's Canal District with $35 million in infrastructure and affordable housing funds; he brought $12.5 million in state funds to the Berkshire Innovation Center, which will focus on life sciences in Pittsfield; he played an integral role in persuading General Electric to locate its world headquarters in Boston's Seaport District; and he was instrumental in bringing about a significant reduction in the number of homeless families living in motels.

All in all, Jay Ash's tenure as Secretary of Housing and Economic Development has been among the most successful and remarkable of any Cabinet member of any administration in the state's history.

We know we speak not only for the residents of his native Chelsea, but also for citizens throughout the state, in thanking Jay Ash for his years of public service and wishing him well in his future endeavors.

CLERGY VIEWPOINT

FROM THE CHARLESTOWN CLERGY ASSOCIATION

What makes you happy?

By Very Reverend James Ronan, VF – Pastor, St. Mary-St. Catherine of Siena Parish

Kind of an interesting question, don't you think? I wonder if each of us would answer in different ways. Would the answer of a child be different from that of a teenager or an adult? How about the response of an 80-year-old person – would it be very different from that of a 30 something? I wonder how my answer to this question has changed over the years. I mean there was a time when my graduate education and career were uppermost in my mind. Another chapter, when my social life had high priority.

Is the "happiness" thing a sliding scale, changing from day to day or week to week? I ask the question because these past weeks the readings at Mass have provoked me to wonder why I am happy and what causes my happiness. For example, on Friday this week (Jan. 25) we celebrate the feast of the conversion of Saint Paul. The reflections around the feast of St. Paul detail that after Paul's conversion, his whole life became one of service to the Gospel of Jesus Christ. His own will was so impacted by love of Christ that it became configured to Christ's will. This harmony of wills fueled by love explained Paul's amazing and ever present Joy, even in the midst of suffering of all kinds. Paul would go on to write that his life included times of wealth and of poverty, times of hunger and of abundance, times of success and of failure, and he had come to regard everything as having little value other than his relationship with Christ.

Perhaps it is, therefore, that the only common denominator in life that brings happiness to any person at any stage is the presence of love. Not a love that is very self-serving, rather a mature love that is more other-centered. Again, Paul wrote elegantly of this as well: If I achieve everything that this world has to offer, without love, I gain nothing. He concludes his marvelous treatise on love as follows: When I was a child I used to talk like a child, think like a child, reason like a child. When I became a man I put childish ways aside ... There are in the end three things that last: faith, hope and love, and the greatest of these is love. (1 Corinthians 13).

Each day of our lives, there is something in front of me that promises happiness. More often than not, it includes everything from a laxative to a Cadillac. Sure, there is stuff that can be pleasing and meet needs and desires. But true happiness, well that is something more.

The whole world is searching for happiness – frenetically it seems. And St. Paul found the answer and it is offered to us every day.

Encore, Rep. Ryan support move to legalize sports betting in Massachusetts

By Seth Daniel

Gov. Charlie Baker shocked many last week with an out-of-the-blue proposal to legalize sports betting in Massachusetts – with one of the prime sites for the proposed new wagering system to be at Encore Boston Harbor.

Baker said he plans to file the bill soon with the legislature, a bill that would allow betting on all professional sporting events – but not on college, amateur, high school or Esports events.

Baker has tagged all state revenues from sports betting to be allocated for local aid to cities and towns. The governor estimated that the system could be up by July 1, in time for the FY20 budget, and could generate another $35 million for the state's cities and towns.

Encore Boston Harbor said it hadn't reviewed Baker's proposal, but it does support the expansion of gaming in Massachusetts to the sports betting arena. Wynn Resorts already has a very popular and long-standing sports book based in Las Vegas – where it has two in-person betting locations at two casinos.

"We've not yet had the opportunity to study the bill, and therefore cannot comment on the specifics of it," said Michael Weaver, spokesman for Wynn Resorts. "However, we do support the concept and introduction of sports betting in the Commonwealth."

State Rep. Dan Ryan said he agrees with sports betting in principle, but would like to take a closer look at Gov. Baker's bill during the legislative session.

"I'd still have to see the details of sports betting legislation, but I support the concept," he said. "For good or bad, this is the world we live in now. Technology has allowed activities that were historically banished to the underworld into the mainstream. Whether it's casinos, marijuana or sports betting, society is bringing these things off the black market and taxing them. Thus far we haven't fallen into an abyss. We need to take serious steps to protect vulnerable populations, our current legal gaming and the integrity of our professional sports product. But, I do believe there are ways to do this while deriving an entertainment tax from a wide swath of participants and not just a sin tax on the poor."

Baker said on Thursday morning, Jan. 17, that sports betting is a natural progression in the evolution of the state's gaming industry. The move also follows the legalization of sports betting in Rhode Island, where lines for wagering at Twin Rivers Casino – just over the state line – have been so long that betting has had to be cut off for the sake of time.

"Expanding Massachusetts' developing gaming industry to include wagering on professional sports is an opportunity for Massachusetts to invest in local aid while remaining competitive with many other states pursuing similar regulations," said Gov. Baker. "Our legislation puts forth a series of commonsense proposals to ensure potential licensees are thoroughly vetted and safeguards are in place to protect against problem gambling and illegal activity. We look forward to working with our colleagues in the Legislature to pass this bill into law."

House Speaker Bob DeLeo said he is most concerned about protecting the integrity of the games.

"The first issue that has to be addressed is that the integrity of the game is protected," he said. "That being said, an in-depth analysis of any legislation proposed is warranted. The House will review any sports betting proposal submitted by the governor."

The MGC said it did not have a comment at this time on the news.

The administration's proposal would authorize the MGC to issue newly-created sport wagering licenses to the current Category 1 resort casino licensees, which includes Encore and the MGM Springfield property. It would also be extended to the Category 2 licensee, which is Plainridge. A current gaming license would be required to operate an onsite sports wagering lounge.

The bill would also create an online presence too for those holding the new in-person sports betting license.

Holders of newly created gaming licenses would be able to provide sports wagering online, or contract with an entity to provide the service. Online sports pool operators would need to be licensed as a gaming vendor and the agreement would need to be approved by the MGC.

Separate from existing Category 1 and Category 2 licensees, the administration's proposal also allows for unaffiliated entities to conduct online-only sports wagering. Online only operators would need to be fully qualified and licensed by the MGC as a sports wagering licensee under the current process set forth by the Expanded Gaming Statute.

To get in on the new licenses, a $100,000 application fee would be required under the proposal, and those approved for the license would pay a $500,000 licensing fee, which is renewable every five years.

The tax rate for in-person wagering would be 10 percent and online wagering would be at a higher, 12.5 percent, rate.

The revenue generated from renewals, in person and online wagering would exclusively go to the Gaming Local Aid Fund to finance local aid distributions, mirroring the current system for directing revenue from Plainridge. To level the playing field, a 12.5 percent tax rate would also be applied to daily fantasy sports contests, which are currently untaxed.

The administration anticipates revenues of $35 million in the upcoming Fiscal Year 2020, revenues that the proposal would call for going to local aid.

The legislation calls on the MGC to promulgate necessary regulations to implement sports wagering, including protections for people placing wagers, a cashless system for sports wagering and a verification system to approve age and identity of potential online users. The MGC will also be asked to include the impact of sports wagering on individuals, businesses and the economy in its annual research report.

Similar to the Commonwealth's current regulations governing daily fantasy sports, wagers would not be permitted on high school, collegiate or amateur events. Wagers would also not be permitted on Esports.

and we want to build the marina and build the HarborWalk and finish this project," said Ann LaGasse this week. "We have presented a revised plan and we're waiting to finalize that. It's disappointing it took this long. We believe in the project and we believe in Pier 6. Things are booming on Pier 8 and we love Charlestown. We are ready to move forward."

The design had been submitted years ago to the Attorney General and the DEP under a consent decree plan instituted due to the takeover from Oliner. That plan was sent back for revisions last year, and resubmitted by the LaGasses. The plan includes putting 100 slips on Pier 6 in the same fashion as Pier 8 – a project built mostly using Boston Harbor industries. It will also include an expansion of the HarborWalk as well, going up the south side to Pier 5 and wrapping around Pier 6 with a new park space at the end of the pier facing the water. The restaurant on the pier will remain as a tenant. The HarborWalk plan will include new benches, flowers and lighting as well.

Neighborhood leaders, including the Friends of the Charlestown Navy Yard, and even the Boston Planning and Development Agency (BPDA) – which controls a good amount of the Navy Yard – have advocated to speed up the process. Both are major supporters of the plan to re-build the marina at Pier 6.

Additionally, the office of Coastal Zone Management (CZM) filed a review notice this month to initiate the federal review of the marina project – another positive sign in the process.

health and substance use treatment they need, and protect the Affordable Care Act. AG Healey also highlighted her ongoing lawsuit against Purdue Pharma.

"I promise you – we'll hold opioid makers accountable for the role they played in creating this crisis," said AG Healey, noting that her office was the first state to sue not just Purdue Pharma, the maker of OxyContin, but also its executives and its owners. "We'll do whatever it takes to hold this company accountable and get the justice our families deserve."

On gun violence, AG Healey said her office will continue to work with survivors of violence and young leaders, including the student organizers of March for Our Lives Boston, who were at the inauguration ceremony.

"Over the last four years, we worked and cried with too many parents who've had to experience the unimaginable. People who turned their grief into action, and their loss into resolve, to protect those we can still keep safe," AG Healey said. "In the name of their children, and all those we've lost, we say, 'no more.'"

This year, the AG's Office will work with Sandy Hook Promise to expand school-based violence prevention and suicide training and mental health training to nearly train 140,000 young people.

AG Healey also highlighted the need for Massachusetts to "lead the clean energy revolution that will protect and power the world" and protect the investments made toward a clean and sustainable future.

"Our shoreline is eroding, our fishing communities are watching ecosystems collapse, residents from Plum Island to South Boston to the Cape are facing costs in the billions, and our federal government calls it a hoax," AG Healey said. "In this critical moment, let us act."

She called for the need to set new goal – meeting the state's electric power needs with renewable energy by 2050, and half or more by 2030, with a comprehensive statewide plan for electric vehicles. AG Healey also endorsed the plan for a regional cap-and-invest system to address emissions in the transportation sector, modeled on the Regional Greenhouse Gas Initiative.

And lastly on education, AG Healey said her office will support efforts on Beacon Hill and stand with community leaders to secure new funding for education.

"I've visited a lot of classrooms over the past four years. I've learned we have incredible teachers and administrators, and the best students in the world. But the way schools are funded in our state doesn't work," AG Healey said. "Your zip code shouldn't determine the quality of your education. Let's make the changes we need to give every student the same chance to succeed."

AG Healey's address centered around teamwork and working together as a state to build a better future.

"From my basketball days, I know what makes a great team," she said, recalling her days as a player at Harvard University. "The best team isn't the one with the fastest players or the tallest players. It's the team that is willing to go above and beyond – that isn't intimidated by long odds. That knows we are truly at our best when we work together and make the people around us better. That's the kind of team we have here in this state. That's why, no matter what happens in Washington, we'll continue to lead. We'll take care of each other and lift each other up."

The swearing-in ceremony was also attended by state and local officials, members of the judiciary, former Attorneys General Martha Coakley, Tom Reilly and Jim Shannon, partners in law enforcement and first responders, along with family, friends and colleagues.

First major demolition underway on North Washington Street Bridge

By Seth Daniel

The North Washington Street Bridge project will log its first major demolition of the old bridge in work that started this week in removing a median and the western sidewalk.

The work is scheduled to be done from this week through Feb. 1 and will be conducted by barges on the water. They will remove the center median strip on the North End side, and then remove the sidewalks on the Charles River side of the bridge. The adjacent HarborWalk underpass will also be demolished and removed as well.

The work hours are from 7 a.m. to 6 p.m. on weekdays. No weekend work is scheduled for that part of the project. Traffic will be reduced to one lane inbound from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

At the same time, Eversource will continue to relocate its utilities on the North End side of the bridge on weekdays and Saturdays from 7 a.m. to 2 p.m.

The work is a precursor to what will be much more in depth schedule of construction set to begin in the spring.

A full recap of the work can be found elsewhere in this edition.

CONSTRUCTION LOOK AHEAD: JAN. 28 – FEB. 1 NORTH WASHINGTON STREET BRIDGE (CHARLESTOWN BRIDGE)

This document provides a brief overview of construction operations and impacts for the North Washington Street Bridge Replacement Project.

•DEMOLITION AND SITE PREPARATION:

DESCRIPTION: Removal of median on the south side of the center lane, continued protection of electrical lines and utilities, and demolition of the western sidewalk (Charles River side) and adjacent Harborwalk underpass using barge-mounted cranes and other equipment stationed in the water.

WORK HOURS: Daytime on weekdays (7 a.m.-6 p.m.)

TRAVEL IMPACTS: From Jan. 28 to Feb. 1, during off-peak hours from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., inbound traffic will be reduced to one lane on the bridge to create a work zone for sidewalk demolition.

•UTILITY RELOCATION:

DESCRIPTION: Utility relocation and upgrades on the southern end of the bridge at Keany Square will continue weekdays and on Saturdays by Eversource.

WORK HOURS: Daytime on weekdays (7 a.m.-2 p.m.) and Saturdays (7 a.m.-3:30 p.m.)

TRAVEL IMPACTS: At Keany Square, from 7 a.m. to 2 p.m. on weekdays and 7 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. on Saturdays, traffic will be diverted around Eversource work zones. All turn movements will be maintained, with two inbound lanes available during the morning peak. During any outbound work requiring closure of the slip lane, traffic turning right onto the bridge from Commercial Street will use the intersection.

•TRAVEL TIPS:

PEDESTRIANS AND CYCLISTS: The bridge's eastern sidewalk is open and available to all pedestrians and cyclists with crossings at both Keany and City Squares. Please be advised that the DCR-controlled Charlestown locks can provide another alternate route, but may close without warning and beyond control of this project.

All users should take care to pay attention to all signage and police details and move carefully through the work zone. Police details, changes in lane markings, temporary controls such as barriers and traffic cones, signage, and other tools will be used throughout the project to control traffic and create safe work zones.

The contractor is coordinating with the TD Garden and local police to provide awareness and manage traffic impacts during events. For your awareness, during this look-ahead period, the following events are scheduled:

Bruins: Jan. 29 at 7 p.m., and Jan. 31 at 7 p.m.

Celtics: Jan. 26 at 8:30 p.m., Jan. 28 at 7:30 p.m., Jan. 30 at 7:30 p.m.

Events: Feb. 1 and Feb. 2 at 8 p.m.

not seem to know why he was in court and exhibited psychotic and bizarre behavior--at one point dropping to his knees and praying and 'asking for forgiveness.'

He will return to Charlestown District Court for his official arraignment on Febr. 11 with court appointed attorney, Joseph Perullo.

Pena was arrested Tuesday inside his apartment on Walford Way where arresting officers also found an emotionally distraught Ambrose.

Ambrose had been missing since around 11 p.m. Saturday night when she was separated from her twin sister and a group of friends at Hennessey's Bar in Faneuil Hall.

Ambrose, who moved from Wenham to Jamaica Plain recently, was reported missing by her family Sunday when she failed to return home to her Boston apartment.

On Tuesday Boston Police released video surveillance of Ambrose in the company of Pena, as well as a timeline events after she left the bar in Boston. At 11:42 p.m. two unknown males, one later identified as Pena, are observed inviting Ambrose to walk with them in the area of Congress Street and State Street. One of the males appears to walk ahead while the second male, later determined to be Pena by police, places his arm around Ambrose and directs her towards the State Street MBTA Station. Twenty minutes later at 12:01 a.m. additional video showed Ambrose being accompanied by Pena, still with his arm around her, exiting the Bunker Hill Community MBTA Station in Charlestown. The other male party is no longer observed in any surveillance video moving forward. The other male later turned himself into police, has been cleared and is now considered a witness by investigators.

Ten minutes later at 12:13 a.m.

The victim Olivia Ambrose told police she was held against her will inside Victor Pena's Bunker Hill Housing Development apartment since early Sunday morning.

Ambrose and Pena are observed again in the area of Green Street walking together towards Bartlett Street. A short time later, phone records indicate Ambrose's phone was in the general area of the Bunker Hill Housing Development.

Using the above footage, as well as a search of MBTA Charlie Card holders living on Walford Way, police said they had probable cause to believe Pena was Ambrose's abductor.

Detectives enlisted the help of the Boston Housing Authority management who led them to Pena's apartment at 49 Walford Way with the intent of opening the door for the police. However, according to reports Pena had installed a private lock on his apartment door--against BHA rules.

Officers were forced to knock for 20 minutes while other officers drilled the private lock off Pena's door.

Once the private lock was off, Pena finally answered the door.

Police found him and Ambrose standing next to each other in the hallway and Ambrose was "crying with a horrified look on her face."

In a statement to The Boston Globe, Ambrose's family said,

"The Ambrose family is so grateful for the monumental efforts of the Boston Police Department and the MBTA and Transit police who have worked tirelessly over the last three days to bring Olivia home. The family is overjoyed."

The Suspect

Victor Pena previously lived in Newark, N.J., and Pennsylvania, and had previously violated restraining orders in 2008 and 2014, according to reports, but both were dismissed.

Apparently he was known to MBTA Police because due to an incident in 2009. That year a woman complained that Pena was stalking her at the Downtown Crossing MBTA station. The woman got off the train at Back Bay and Pena followed her before she reported his behavior to an information officer working at kiosk in the station. He was told to leave the station.

Another incident revealed that Pena was ushered off another train by MBTA police when he sat directly next to two unengaged girls on an empty train making them feel uncomfortable.

He was also arrested for giving false information to gaming officials in a Rhode Island casino.

Victor Pena, 38, of Charlestown is lead into Charlestown Court Wednesday afternoon.

HOW TO MAKE BOSTON'S BUILDING BOOM WORK FOR RESIDENTS?

Boston is in the midst of a building boom, much like city leaders and residents said took place back in 1983, when gentrification started seeping into places like Charlestown, where I resided at the time. Home prices and rental properties zoomed to the moon.

It went by pretty unnoticed by most, but eventually a beachhead for gentrification was established inside the old Charlestown Navy Yard and rammed through the Navy Yard wall into the community as a whole.

Here we are today in 2019 and the current Boston building boom looks like King Kong next to a baby chimp. More and more high-end housing rises into the sky all over Downtown Boston and scattered across the city's neighborhood landscapes. It is like a cancer spreading from one end of the city to the other.

Readers of the Boston Sunday Globe (Jan. 20) saw that Page 1 advertisement for ECHELON Seaport - Destination Living condominiums priced from the mid-$700,000 range to $5 million.

Listen to the sales pitch: 'It's not just where you live. It's how. Why fit in when you were born to stand out? Amenities that will know your stilettos off.'

Columnist Joe Galeota who writes in the Boston Bulletin has been around a while like me, musing at how this city grows both in positive and negative ways. As he recently penned, "Right now, if empty-nesters, as part of a downsizing decide to sell their homes after paying off 30-year mortgages and their children have moved out, they have no place to rent alongside other seniors in their zip code anywhere in the entire city."

As I look around from my view on Eagle Hill in East Boston, I wonder where the middle-class of firefighters; police officers, like myself; store clerks; social workers; nurses; dentists and hair dresser can they live out their so-called golden years, which I think vanished decades ago with all the money made by developers looking to make all the gold they can for themselves.

I look back to my experience in Charlestown. In 1969, my parents rented a two-bedroom apartment at 12 Pearl St.; the rent $150 plus utilities - not bad. I remember back in 1970 you could buy a little cookie-cutter house by Bartlett Street for $9,000. About 20 years later, the same tiny house went up for sale for $125,000. I don't even want to think what the house price for that little attached row-house might go for today.

The market rent for a one-bedroom is now twice what a minimum-wage worker takes home on payday. We have an affordable housing CRISIS today. I do not think anyone can build our way out of this crisis. As Jonathan Cohn of Boston stated in his printed letter to the Boston Globe: "We need to make sure that we are building for all income levels and that we are aware of the ripple effects that come with new development."

City Hall has stated expectations that between 2014 and 2030, there will be 105,000 new residents populating our city. Who will they be? Who will be excluded by price? Where will these folks go for shelter? Where are families to settle?

We keep building new housing units in new developments where perhaps out of 25 units, four will be affordable. We can't keep this kind of growth going because the downside will be too costly for all average working families.

We have elected officials out there trying to do the right thing like my District 1 City Councilor Lydia Edwards or my longtime friend, District 3 City Councilor Eddie Flynn. The Boston City Council members are trying to help make Boston a livable city.

We should not become a city of extremes where only the very rich or very poor can co-exist. I have seen this situation play out before in other large cities.

Our Mayor Marty Walsh wants to add 105,000 folks to our population. The City of Austin in 10 years time has gone from 800,000 to 960,000. Growth in numbers isn't helping the growing number of folks there living in the shadow of prosperity. The same is true here.

I want the City of Boston to grow but not by destroying places like Charlestown that could be swallowed up and destroyed. We cannot become a city of only the very rich and very poor. We need everyone to grow better together.

I urge community folks to keep fighting, keep communal voices high and never give up. "Never, never give up," as Winston Churchill once stated in one of the world's darkest hours.

Applied Learning Center unveiled at Cathedral High School

By Lauren Bennett

Cathedral High School in the South End revealed its brand new Applied Learning Center at a ribbon cutting ceremony on Sept. 4. Construction for the 15,000 square-foot center began in April 2017, and it will include programs in STEAM-based learning: science, technology, engineering, arts, and mathematics.

Head of Cathedral High School, Oscar Santos, said that the school was founded in 1926 with the purpose to “serve as a mission to make sure that inner city kids have a great place to have an education.”

With the completion of the Applied Learning Center, Santos said that along with the school building and the gymnasium, there are more opportunities for students to be successful. The center will allow students to have hands-on experiences with things like robotics, 3-D printers, and theater. “We know that as the world changes, students need opportunities to have applied learning experiences,” Santos said. “And that’s making sure that they content and the skills that they learn in the classroom is also implied and embedded into the work that we do here every day so that students are better prepared to go out into the workforce, and more importantly, into the world.”

Paul Chisholm, Chair of the Board of Trustees, told the students at the ribbon cutting: “This is your building...make sure you take advantage of it, make sure you challenge your teachers, because this is the type of education you need to be successful in the future.”

Senior Armani Lamin spoke about his third summer at the Crimson Summer Academy at Harvard University, where he lived on campus and studied macroeconomics and expository writing. “It gave me a sneak peek of what college would be like and so I enjoyed that,” Lamin said. He spoke about how great it was to be in the same room with people who came from all over the world for the same purpose: to get an education. “And with this building that you guys have funded and put all your time into we can advance our education, so for that I thank all of you,” he said. He said he’s most excited to use the 3-D printers and getting to know the new Applied Learning Center, where he will have some classes this year.

The building was blessed by the Very Rev. James Flavin, who prayed that the center would become one where “students and teachers imbued with the words of truth will search for the wisdom that guides the Christian life and strive wholeheartedly by Christ as their teacher...”

Current Cathedral students provided those in attendance with a tour of the new facility, showing them the different dedicated spaces that they are excited to use.

Santos said that the school will

Forming the leaders of tomorrow at Malden Catholic

Since its founding in 1932, Malden Catholic High School has prided itself on delivering an educational program that turns the outstanding students of today into the outstanding leaders of tomorrow. Formed by a rigorous college-preparatory experience and steeped in the values of the Catholic and Xaverian traditions, MC students have gone on to pursue meaningful careers and vocations that touch all aspects of society. Malden Catholic counts among its alumni CEOs, doctors, lawyers, innovators, teachers and administrators, members of the United States military, priests, deacons, vowed religious, professional athletes, tradesmen, law enforcement officers, state representatives, ambassadors, a United States Senator, and a Nobel Laureate in Economics.

This has not happened by accident! Regardless of what paths in life the graduates of Malden Catholic pursue, they all share a common vocation: the call to be servant-leaders.

As Malden Catholic begins the next chapter of its history as a codivisional school—all-boys and all-girls divisions on one shared campus—it does so with an intentional focus on providing unique programs for boys and girls to develop their God-given potential for effecting change through confident, ethical leadership.

Four programs at Malden Catholic stand out as foundational aspects of Malden Catholic's focus on leadership:

The Malden Catholic Leadership Institute (School for Boys)

One of the most cherished of Malden Catholic's traditions, the Leadership Institute is the signature event in the four-year progression of retreats at Malden Catholic School for Boys. Sponsored by the Campus Ministry team, the institute consists of a dynamic, four-day/three-night program on the campus of Endicott College where service, worship, team-building, and deep self-reflection converge, providing students with the opportunity to examine how their formation at Malden Catholic is calling them to live as faith-filled men of purpose and integrity in their senior year and beyond.

The Leadership Course (School for Girls)
Inaugurated in the fall of 2018, the School for Girls Leadership

Course makes leadership learning and training a priority for students at Malden Catholic School for Girls, providing them with the tools to lead themselves and others. The four-year leadership course helps young women to explore who they are and what they believe. The first of its kind anywhere, the course provides students a way to merge the five values of Xaverian education—humility, simplicity, compassion, trust, and zeal—with effective leadership skills. This program equips girls with the courage to embrace the power of their own voice to affect change locally, nationally, and globally.

The Senior Service Program (School for Boys)

The Senior Service Program at Malden Catholic School for Boys is the culmination of students' four-year commitment to compassionate Christian service to others. After moving through a 15/25/35-hour progression over their first three years at Malden

St. John School poised for academic success and future growth

Nestled in the heart of Boston's North End, St. John School has prepared students for bright futures since 1895. We are a Catholic value-centered learning environment focused on educating students in an atmosphere that fosters the growth of each student in spirit, mind and body. We welcome pre-kindergarten through eighth-grade students and utilize innovative programs and a standards base curriculum to educate the whole child.

students explore and master new subjects, we also open their lens to the world outside. We expose children to the vibrant culture of the city just beyond our walls, through frequent field trips to museums, theaters, and innovative companies helping students build the knowledge they need to excel in high school and beyond.

After graduating from St. John School, students launch into their high school years with the confidence of feeling one step ahead of their peers. This is due largely to our highly-trained teachers and our rigorous curriculum.

Saint Anthony School opens new gym and new music room

By Cary Shuman

The students at the Saint Anthony School in Everett are enjoying the use of their new gymnasium and new music room during school hours and in after-school programs.

Maria Giggie, principal at the parochial school, said the new gym opened in September. The bursting of an interior pipe, in December, 2017, caused extensive damage to the gym, resulting in the installation of a brand new gym new floor and padding along the walls.

"The students absolutely love the gym," said Giggie, who is in her 12th year as leader of the 245-student school. "We're using it as a gymnasium, cafeteria, and auditorium, so we're taking advantage of the space, especially during our after-school programs."

cal education classes in the gym. St. Anthony also has two boys and two girls basketball teams for Grades 5-8. After-school clubs, such as an arts and crafts and a Valentine cooking club (that starts in February), also use the gym each school day.

The school also added a new music room, with classes and after-school instrumental lessons available for students. Julio Santos is the music teacher at the school.

One of the students in the after-school music program is Christian Dopinio, who started at

"I really love this school," said Dopinio, who plays the piano. "Ms. Giggie really tries hard to make this school the best it can be. She listens to the students for their opinions. She is a great principal."

Maria Giggie came to the United States from Italy when she was 15 years old. She holds undergraduate and graduate degrees from Boston University, where she met her husband during her freshman year in college. They have three children, who are all graduates of St. Anthony School.

start three new programs: maker space, which involves engineering, as well as creating robots, where the students will learn basic programming and then prototype and print. In addition, there will be a new art program with a new art teacher to increase the level of arts instruction at the school, and finally, programs for theater and music.

He said they surveyed the kids and asked what their interests and passions were, and these were the top results. Being able to provide the students with real-world experiences and input through having workshops with real firms and companies are some of the "things that help kids feel like they're part of the solution and really creating," Santos said.

"What I'm most excited about is really giving kids real world opportunities to make sure that the things that they're learning in class, they can connect it to their real lives," Santos said.

Santos said that most importantly, he wants to thank everyone who helped make this a reality, and that buildings go up and down every day in the City of Boston, but "this is really about opportunity for kids and it's the Cathedral story," he said.

Very Rev. James Flavin reads a prayer before he blesses the new building.

The students are excited for the new center too. Senior Lisalina Pena said "I'm glad they're making all these changes right now and they're trying really hard to make us happy and listen to our voices and I like that." She said she's excited to take some law and justice classes, and is thinking about applying to Tufts University and Wellesley College to study law, or even heading down to Washington, D.C.

Lamin said he really wants to apply to some liberal arts colleges like Harvard, Boston University, and Boston College to study economics or something in the medical field.

Cathedral High School senior Armani Lamin talks about his experience in the Crimson Summer Academy at Harvard University.

Sept. 5 is the first day of school for Cathedral students, and though some of the equipment for the Applied Learning Center has not arrived yet, students will slowly ease into the opportunities it has to offer. Santos said that the new center ultimately "lets the community know that we're around and we'll be here for the long haul."

A SHORT STORY ABOUT GROWING UP WITH AN UNFAIR ADVANTAGE.

POLIO.

As one of the last American children to contract polio, Jeffrey Galpin grew up in a world of iron lungs and body casts, alone with his imagination. His story would be dramatic enough if it was just about his battle with this dreaded disease.

But Jeffrey Galpin did more than survive polio. He went on to a list of achievements in medical research—including being the principal investigator in applying the first gene therapy for HIV/AIDS.

Dr. Galpin actually credits his own incurable condition for giving him the focus that made him so passionate in his research. His story leaves us with two of the most contagious messages we know. Don't give up, and remember to give back. If Dr. Galpin's story inspires just one more person to make a difference, then its telling here has been well worth while.

Catholic, seniors carry out 90 hours of service under the direction of Campus Ministry, devoting 60 of those hours to a non-profit organization of their choice over a two-week period in January. Some of the most popular organizations among MC students in recent years have included Habitat for Humanity of Greater Boston, iPods for Wounded Veterans, Mission of Deeds, Housing Families, Inc., and the Greater Boston Food Bank. Following their two weeks of service, seniors use the second semester of their theology courses to share and discuss the insights, learnings, and movements of the Spirit that arose as a result of their service.

The Capstone Program at Malden Catholic School for Girls provides students with the opportunity to put into practice the faith and character formation they have received. The Capstone invites students to investigate an area of social concern over four years and develop a substantial Christian service community outreach initiative in that area of concern, undertaken in the junior year. The senior service commitment is dedicated fully to the chosen area of social concern. The Capstone allows each student to become a flexible and self-directed learner, a strong team collaborator, an innovative problem solver, an effective communicator, a competent information researcher, a globally aware individual, and a compassionate

Encore Boston Harbor tops the list of anticipated hotel openings

By Seth Daniel

Just a few short years ago, few would have thought that something on the old Monsanto Chemical site across the Alford Street Bridge from Charlestown would be anticipated worldwide.

That is just the case, though, as Forbes Magazine published a list of the most anticipated hotel openings worldwide for 2019, and the Encore Boston Harbor project – located on that forgotten old Monsanto site – topped the list.

Forbes published its list on Thursday, Jan. 17, in its magazine – detailing 17 of the most highly anticipated openings, noting "In an Instagram age where every colorful corner of the world is snapped, geotagged, posted and then becomes overcrowded, it's a struggle to find something new."

Some of those new places included luxury digs in Athens, Punta Cana, London, Bangkok, New York City's Hudson Yards, and...Encore Boston Harbor in Everett.

The magazine notes that the Las Vegas staple of luxury will be making its East Coast debut with the project.

"A Vegas staple makes its East Coast debut with the summer opening of the 671-room casino resort perched on the Mystic River," read the article. "Beyond the glittering game floors, dynamic dining venues and eye-catching art installations Wynn resorts are known for, this waterfront Boston spot will also have a six-acre Harborwalk park, complete with bike paths, alfresco restaurants and more."

Encore posted on its Twitter site that it was thrilled to be included in Forbes list, which was compiled by its Travel Guide editors.

•In other Encore hospitality news...The casino announced last week that it was partnering with Boston Harbor Distillery in Dorchester as one of its local beverage partners. The distillery is located in one of the last remaining mill buildings in Boston, and on the waterfront as well. It produces items that are tied to the Samuel Adams brewing company, as its founder has ties to that company.

Earlier this month, Encore announced its first beverage

School Committee: Boston superintendent position will be desirable job

By Seth Daniel

The superintendent of schools in Boston will be a desirable job across the country, School Committee Chair Michael Loconto said this month as the process began to choose a new school leader.

"Boston is a place people want to be and always has been," he said. "It's big enough in some ways that you can achieve noteworthy results, but a specific size where you can also innovate. You get a lot of support from higher education, business leaders and philanthropy here...There's been a lot of chatter about the opening in Boston. People have been suggesting candidates throughout the fall. We believe we'll see a good crop of viable candidates."

The Committee has approved its job description for the position already late last year, and brought on the search firm of Isaacson Miller.

The firm has an agreement in principal now, he said, and they are getting to work with the Search Committee.

"We're on track to have public interviews this spring and have someone chosen on or before the start of the next school year," he said. "It's important for us to get someone on board for the start of the next school year. It will be important to bring them on as far in advance as we can...There's a lot that goes into that."

Right now, Boston does face some competition among major cities, with Dallas and Houston having vacancies. Those are much bigger cities though, and Loconto said some of the real competitors are the likes of Columbus, Ohio and Denver – who also have vacancies and are searching.

Some of those larger districts are ahead of Boston, as their last superintendents gave notice long before former Supt. Tommy Chang did at the end of the last school year. Nonetheless, Loconto said the desirability of the city will likely play in Boston's favor.

"They'll probably make their hires prior to us," he said. "Nonetheless, I know it's competitive in terms of like districts and in terms of size, but Boston is a place that has no peer in support for innovation. That tells us we'll be a good location regardless of the others."

One very important aspect for this incoming superintendent, he said, would be knowing how to see through a building project. With BuildBPS just getting started, and a remaining $800 million in school funding pledged to that process, any new superintendent is going to have to know how to collaborate and coordinate, Loconto said.

"It's going to have to be an important characteristic," he said, noting that they would look for someone who has experience re-organizing a district and even raising money for school building projects.

That will only come, though, if the candidate shows that they can building coalitions in a political environment and collaborate with other effectively.

Within the month, the search firm and the Search Committee will begin receiving applications, and they hope to have the private, soft interviews by late February. That would usher in the public interviews sometime in the spring, just like was done with Supt. Chang several years ago.

New Boston Harborwalk signs unveiled in Charlestown

Staff Report

Two new Harborwalk interpretive signs, with content provided by Friends of the Boston Harborwalk (FBHW), were installed this week at Harborview condos next door to Spaulding Rehabilitation Hospital in Charlestown.

The signs highlight site-specific history, enriching people's enjoyment of Boston's 43-mile public Harborwalk.

One new sign tells the story of U. S. Navy wooden ships that were transformed into floating barracks during the second half of the 19th Century—including the U.S.S Constitution.

The second sign focuses on the lives of the Massachusett, when they lived on what English settlers would later name Charlestown.

"I worked closely with the Massachusetts Tribal Council, in particular Ren Green, Medicine Sac'hem, to develop the text for this sign," explains Liz Nelson Weaver, leader of FBHW's signage team. "I also followed council members' suggestion for the main image."

The FBHW signage team looked for key places along Boston's waterfront where the Native American story can be highlighted, and found one at this point of land in Charlestown. Six additional Harborwalk signs are in production for installation in East Boston, and another dozen are in various stages of development.

The FBHW is a volunteer organization, affiliated with Boston Harbor Now, that regularly hosts educational tours and other events to promote greater awareness and public enjoyment of Boston's Harborwalk.

Two new signs along the HarborWalk in Charlestown were recently placed by the Friends of the Boston HarborWalk. They depict a Native American site and the other a U.S. Navy

AMAZING VOLUNTEERS

Councilor Lydia Edwards recognized volunteers from CharlestownDogs and members of the Public Works Department at the City Council meeting on Jan. 16 for their can-do attitude in disposing of the trash that has piled up at the Bunker Hill Monument due to the U.S. Government shutdown – which has put all of the National Parks Rangers and staff on furlough for more than 30 days.

“Today, we are very lucky to have three amazing volunteers from Charlestown of the 30 members who have been going to the park every few days to bag trash and dog waste,” said Edwards at the Council. “They’ve gone out of their way to clean the trash, utilize the waste bags they’ve installed, and posted signs encouraging visitors to use them. They’ve taken time out of their lives to ensure that Charlestown remains the beautiful, healthy, and vibrant community that we know and love. If one thing is clear, when those in Washington, D.C., fail to step up to the plate and lead, we know our neighbors in Charlestown will.”

When You Open And Use
A New Checking Account

cambridgesavings.com/check200

Always you.

¹Earn a $200 bonus when you open a new Simple, Performance or Performance Plus Checking Account with a $10 minimum opening deposit between 1/14/19 and 3/31/19 and complete the following requirements within each of the first full three calendar months following the date the new account is funded: (1) Receive cumulative direct deposits totaling $1,000 or more. (2) Complete 5 posted debit transactions, including checks paid, debit card transactions, wire transfers, or ACH debits. For example, a qualifying account type opened and funded during the month of February must complete the requirements in the months of March, April, and May in order to qualify for the bonus. The new account funding must be completed by 3/31/19. Qualifying direct deposits are electronic deposits of your paycheck, pension or government benefits from your employer or the government. Person-to-person and bank transfers between your Cambridge Savings Bank accounts or accounts you have at other financial institutions do not qualify. You must not currently have a Cambridge Savings Bank personal checking account or have had one in the last 12 months. A $200 credit will be made to your checking account within 30 days of completing requirements as long as qualification conditions are met and the account remains open in good standing. The Performance Plus Checking Account has a 0.05% Annual Percentage Yield (APY). The APY is accurate as of 1/14/19. The rate is variable and may change after account opening and fees may reduce earnings. Minimum balance to obtain the APY is $10. No minimum balance is required to receive the bonus. The value of the bonus will be reported to the IRS as interest. Limit one bonus per customer. This offer cannot be combined with any other offers and may be withdrawn at any time. All other rules and regulations for checking accounts apply. CHK-0132n Rev.1/19 Member FDIC | Member DIF | Equal Housing Lender
